

PAINTED DREIDELS

Lesson of the Day:

Hanukkah is a holiday where Jewish people celebrate the “Festival of Lights”. They light candles, eat special foods, and spend time together with their family. There is a game they play with dreidels. Playing games from other cultures is a great way to learn more about them and have fun at the same time!

Materials:

- Cardboard or cardstock
- Watercolor paints
- Paintbrushes
- Container for water

Instructions:

1. Discuss the lesson of the day with your students. Talk about what it means to them.
2. Cut out dreidel shapes for students.
3. Students can watercolor paint whatever pattern they want onto the dreidel.
4. Once it's dry, have students draw one of the shapes from a real dreidel onto their art pieces.
5. If desired, play real dreidel with your students so they can engage with the game and with Jewish culture.
