

THE DAY IT RAINED HEARTS

FELICIA BOND

SUMMARY

One day it starts to rain hearts. Cornelia Augusta is outside on a walk and decides to catch as many as she can. She wants to use them to make Valentines for her friends. But all the hearts are different! Can she find a way to make the perfect Valentine for each friend?

Questions:

1. What would you do if it started raining hearts? How would you feel?
2. What could you do with hearts if you caught them like Cornelia Augusta? Are hearts meant to be kept or shared?
3. Have you ever made Valentines by hand or do you only use the ones you buy in stores? Do handmade cards feel more special? Why?
4. Is it easy to make cards for people? Is that something you could do? How do you feel when you get a card? How do you think other people would feel to get a card from you?
5. Does everyone want presents or cards that are exactly the same? What do you have to think about when making a card someone will like? When getting or making cards and gifts it more important what you like or what they will like?
6. Do you think the dog liked his new collar made of hearts?
7. Do you think the mouse liked his heart with holes like cheese?
8. Do you think the turtle liked the picture of him covered with hearts?
9. Do you think bunny liked his heart with a bunny tail?
10. Even though it never rained hearts where Cornelia Augusta lived again, could she still have made thoughtful cards for her friends?
11. Can you make thoughtful cards even though it doesn't rain hearts?