

WE ARE WATER PROTECTORS

CAROLE LINDSTROM

Some things are true for all people on the planet, and one of them is that clean, drinkable water is necessary and precious. Some cultures are more connected to water than others, but no matter what, we should always be respectful of other people and other cultures. What happens when water gets spoiled? Who decides what to do with water?

Questions:

1. Why is water so important? What do we use water for every day? What would it be like to not have clean water?
2. Sacred means that something is so important that it becomes part of who someone is and what they believe about the world. If something is sacred to someone, should we respect that? Or should we ignore it and do what we want?
3. If something was sacred to you and it got destroyed, how would you feel? How would you feel if you knew that thing would one day be destroyed, even if it wasn't today?
4. How would you feel if your water was destroyed? What if the water you got wasn't safe to drink?
5. Can kids be leaders? Can you be a leader? What does a good leader need? Do they need courage? Do they need passion? Do they need to be a good listener?
6. Is it important to stand up for what you believe in? Why?
7. Would it be scary to stand up all by yourself? Would it be easier to do the right thing and to stand up for what's right with a whole team that has your back?
8. Does every life on Earth matter? Do people in other countries matter? Do animals matter? Do insects matter? Do plants matter?
9. If one part of the Earth gets destroyed, would it affect other parts of the Earth? Why is it important to take care of planet Earth?
10. What can you do to keep the Earth and the water clean and healthy?
